

Dream 3

My husband and kids and I had just spent the night at a hotel with my in-laws. I was sitting on the floor packing up our stuff so we could leave. My husband was down checking out. We had brought lots of clothing and the kids had brought lots of toys. I couldn't believe how much stuff there was--like we had been planning to stay for weeks! I opened a door and saw another bedroom. It had been stayed in. The green sheets were open and the bed had not been remade. I realized that my parents had stayed there the night before and left some of their stuff. I started to gather it....a nasal inhaler of my mom's and some other cosmetic stuff. 2 large candles were burning. I started to wonder..were we supposed to have cleaned the linens? or was the hotel? I stood on a scale and weighed myself. I weighed 195 pounds. I was disappointed because I thought I had lost more weight than that. As I was leaving the room to find my husband and tell him about the other room I noticed a blond woman looking at some files on the floor. I realized that this wasn't a hotel....it was actually somebody's condo that we were renting. Then I had some recollection that we were supposed to be out by 9am and I thought it might be almost 11. I went looking for my husband to tell him what I had discovered and thought he might be in the other bathroom. I walked in calling for him and found his parents in there being intimate in the shower. I said sorry and closed the door. It was really no big deal, but my mother in law was all freaked out and apologetic and said "we really needed it" I said, thats OK.

left to deal with other people's stuff

still carrying more "weight" than she should

What would you title the dream?

exposure, inlaws and outlaws, dissapointed and still packing up

Dream 3- essence

still packing up, parents baggage and inlaws baggage, dissapointed, thought she was more "fit" or healthier, still running late

"seems like there is an exhausting cloud over this dreamer"

Recurrent themes from dream 1&2

still packing, dreamer discovering more and more issues! still late , still dealing with or wondering if should take on other people's stuff denial!!!
